September was about the driest September known for many years, as the rainfall recorded during the entire month was only .42, or little less than half an inch, and this fell on two different days. September of one year ago was a rainy month, with a total rainfall of four and one-half inches. For the month of October of last year, the rainfall recorded was 3.77 inches.

In crossing State street in front of Ward's drug store, A. B. Huddleston's automobile was struck by a street car and damaged somewhat. Mr. Huddleston says the accident was due to his engine going "dead," and that there could be no blame attached to the street car crew.

Away back in 1875, Coroner A. M. Clough, of this city, and Dr. A. E. Clough, of Madison, S. D., were in Iowa. At their last meeting of "see you again." But they didn't see each other again for 40 years, and then not until Dr. Clough came to Salem a few days ago to visit his cousin and talk over Iowa times of 40 years ago.

William Loomis, a real estate dealer at Scotts Mills was found dead in his home yesterday morning. As he had not appeared at his home or office all day Thursday, his friends entered his home yesterday morning and found him dead, with evidences showing that death had been caused by his own hand. The doctor sent by Coroner Clough investigated and reported it clearly a case of suicide. He was unmarried and no relatives have been found. Coroner Clough ordered the interment of the body today at Scotts Mills.

Next week, the Salem street railway will begin sending its cars to the Bronerton shops for general repairing and painting. This work takes considerable time, but within a few months all of Salem's street cars will appear in the regulation cherry red, and all in better running order, all of which is in keeping with the spirit of general improvement in the city.

Within the last week, the following parties have become owners of Fords: M. C. Williams, Independence; Albert Frank, Shaw's Ore.; C. A. Botes, Mill City, and W. C. Young, Salem.

The funeral of William J. Ashby, an Oregon pioneer of 1865, was held this morning at the chapel of Webb & Clough. Services were conducted by the Rev. H. E. Stover, of the First Congregational church, and interment at the Macleay cemetery, in the Ashby lot.

The road to Mandalay has nothing on the road to Independence. Those familiar with the scenery between this city and Independence say that the wrecks of automobiles strewn along the way are so common now that very little attention is given to them, and that it seems that the cars coming from Independence are always on the wrong side of the road and generally responsible for the smash-ups.

H. B. Hammer, a traveling salesman from Portland, slept in the dining room of the Marion hotel last night. He had plenty of company, as seven other knights of the grip applied for a night's lodging after all available rooms had been taken. The boys had forgotten that the greatest air in the state was in progress and that sleeping rooms and accommodations were almost at a premium.

Street car service will be maintained to the fair grounds Sunday morning beginning at 6 o'clock, with a 30 minutes service up until 8 o'clock. From 8 o'clock, the regular Sunday service will be maintained during the day. Car service will be on until midnight tonight for the convenience of those attending the banquets this evening.

Seven hours was the time required by the Spaulding Logging company for the erection of their Indiana silo at the state fair grounds, one factory man and three helpers doing the work. This silo is 10 by 25 feet and of a 44 ton capacity. This is about the average time required for putting up this silo. During the erection, photographs were made at the end of each of the seven hours, to indicate how the work was progressing.

Children's eyes. I exercise the greatest care and skill in fitting children's eyes. Your child's eyes should be guarded with care. If the child has headaches, is nervous or holds the book too near the eyes, or too far off, do not neglect them, but have their eyes examined. With the latest improved methods and equipment and my long experience I can correct these troubles and save the child great suffering. Parents, you owe it to your children to do this. If glasses are not needed I will refuse to supply them. Dr. M. P. Mendelsohn, rooms 210-211 U. S. Bank building.

Funeral services were held today in the city for four Oregon pioneers, whose ages aggregate 300 years. Services this morning were held at the parlors of Webb & Clough for the late William J. Ashby, who died at the age of 65 years. At 2 o'clock this afternoon services for William Butte, who died at the age of 71 years, were held from the home, 2620 Lee street. At 3 o'clock, funeral rites for Tristram Coggeshall, aged 85 years, were held at the Friends church, and at 10 o'clock this morning services were held for Lemuel Lemmon, aged 79 years, from the family home, Park and D streets.

The McKinley school will open Monday morning, according to an announcement made by Superintendent Elliott. All pupils living in the part of the city south of Superior and Howard streets will attend this school. Miss Emma Kramer has been elected as principal of the school. The primary room will be in charge of Miss Delra Dillard, room three has been assigned to Miss Lulu Walton and Miss Ermine Bushnell will teach in room four. It is estimated that the attendance at the McKinley school will be over 100, just for the first enrollment.

D. R. Ruble, of rural route one, had the distinction of representing all the farmers in this community at the public market this morning. Either the rainy weather or the final day of the state fair discouraged those who have been selling produce. At any rate, Mr. Ruble had the whole market to himself, and was doing a fairly good business. If the farmers present their petition to the council next Monday evening, and agree on a location, there is a chance for the public market. If they do not agree on a location, the chances are the public market will die just a natural death, from the fact that the farmers will not come in, or will not concentrate on one location.

At the close of the exercises held in Mayor Turner's tented city last evening, the campers formed a campers' union and effected a permanent organization by the election of Judge William Galloway as president. As an appreciation of the efforts of Albert Tozier, in making life pleasant for them during the week, the campers presented him with a suit case, the presentation speech being made by Judge Galloway. Also, as a remembrance of the interest taken in their welfare, they made a gift to Edith Tozier, a handsome traveling bag, which was also presented in behalf of the campers by Judge Galloway. Following these presentations, the platform was cleared for a dance. Before the young ones were permitted to show themselves, the pioneers indulged in several of the square dances, of the kind in vogue in Oregon 40 or 50 years ago.

subjects to be discussed will be, "Education and Our City." Superintendent O. M. Elliott of the Salem schools, will speak from the viewpoint of the public schools, and President Carl Gregg Doney, of the Willamette, will express his views, from the viewpoint of the university. "Rally Day in School and Church" with a specially prepared program is planned for the evening of October 10. On the 17th, an illustrated lecture on Germany, with 50 stereopticon slides will be the event of the evening, and on the following Sunday evening, the address will take up "France and the Marseilles."

The enrollment of pupils attending the Salem high school at the end of the first two weeks is 579, compared to 626 of one year ago. Although this is 47 less, the attendance really shows an increase for these upper grades, as no class has entered from a grammar school, and 100 were graduated last spring. In other words, with 100 pupils going out of the high school and none coming in, there are only 47 less, showing an actual increase this year of 53. One remarkable feature of this total number, is that this year there are 278 boys, compared to 275 one year ago, although the total number enrolled is 47 less than a year ago. This shows an increased percentage in the number of boys attending the school.
